NIRSA and Human Kinetics form Joint Venture

When NIRSA begins its exciting new publishing partnership with Human Kinetics on January 1, 2004, all of its products, publications, and rule books will be sold from a new NIRSA Education Center (NEC) website, and shipped directly from the Human Kinetics headquarters in Champaign, IL.

Please note: The last day to order NIRSA publications directly from the NIRSA National Center is Friday, November 14, 2003. Be sure to order all intramural officials' training materials early. No orders will be processed at the NNC, off the NIRSA website, or from Human Kinetics, between November 15, 2003 and January 1, 2004.

Our relationship with Human Kinetics, an internationally respected publisher that specializes in recreational sports, fitness, and wellness publications, will provide many new benefits to NIRSA members:

- More recreation publications will be written and researched by NIRSA members, for NIRSA members.

- Human Kinetics has a tremendous editing and design staff, plus on-site publishing facilities.
- Human Kinetics has offices worldwide.
- Additional online courses, videos, and software will be available.
- A toll-free number to the NEC will be available during the hours 7am-7pm CST.
- Human Kinetics will exhibit products at the NEC booth at the NIRSA Annual Conference and Recreational Sports Exposition.
- Educational sessions may be held at the Annual Conference for authors to discuss and share research.

Please mark your calendars for November 14, 2003 and order your products and all intramural officials' training materials early.

No orders will be taken at the NIRSA National Center or NIRSA website between November 15, 2003 and January 1, 2004.

University Presidents to Receive Valuable Recreational Research Data

NIRSA continues to emphasize to college and university administrators the importance of campus recreation to student academic achievement and quality of life. The Spring/Summer 2003 Recreational Sports Journal features a special report on the value of campus recreational sports as reported by an independent research firm commissioned by the NIRSA board of directors in 2001.

The Association is mailing this decisive research to the President, Chancellor or chief administrator of every college and university Member-Institution. The study—based on the largest national survey of its kind with 2,673 interviews on 16 college campuses—reveals that students who participate in recreational sports and fitness activities are more likely to succeed at their college work and are more satisfied with their overall college experience. This research research confirms that participation in recreational sports programs and activities in college is a key determinant of satisfaction, success, recruitment, and retention.

A copy of the Recreational Sports Journal (RSJ) with a personal letter from NIRSA President Sid Gonsoulin will be sent to your college or university president, chancellor, or chief administrator within the next few weeks.

Please see Research, page N2

Research

Further Details from the Special Research Report

The research study shows that while heavy participants in recreational sports are serious students concerned about the same academic standards and quality of education as other students, they are also happier than other students are. The report cites the top benefits as:

1. Improves emotional well-being
2. Reduces stress
3. Improves happiness
4. Improves self-confidence
5. Builds character
6. Makes students feel like part of the college community
7. Improves interaction with diverse sets of people
8. Is an important part of college social life
9. Teaches team-building skills
10. Is an important part of learning experience
11. Aids in time-management
12. Improves leadership skills

Start to Market Your Value

JEFF GONTAREK, LOYOLA COLLEGE (MARYLAND)

With the summer upon us, we (your student leadership team) have had the opportunity to step back and reflect on the advancements made over the last year. We have also begun preparations for the school year that is right around the corner.

Your leadership team of Patty Bohn, Jake Rosiek, Ruth Schroeder, Neely Cupit, Erik Unger, Molly Scott, and I will enable you to become better informed and to have a greater say in what happens in your NIRSA. Even though it is summer, we need to be prepared for the upcoming school year, take advantage of the opportunities to grow, be ready to market ourselves as undergraduate and graduate students, and be valuable members of our university teams. If we wait until the end of the school year, change may not take place, but if we get involved now, we will have the time to promote change.

In saying that, we are completing preparations for Regional Student Lead-On's and Conferences for the 2003-2004 school year. Please look at the NIRSA website (nirsa.org) for dates. Also, please find the contact information for the regional student representatives so that you can send them your input to make it a better learning experience for you.

As always, remember to feel free to contact me with any questions and concerns that you may have. Thanks ... Jeff Send questions or comments to: Jeffrey M. Gontarek, NIRSA National Student Representative, Intramural and Club Sports, Loyola College (Maryland) email: jgontarek@loyola.edu or call (410) 617-5454 (M-F 9am-2:30pm).

Horace Moody Award

The purpose of this award is to recognize six professional NIRSA members who have been instrumental in student development.

To be eligible for this award, candidates must meet the following criteria: (1) they must have been a NIRSA professional member in good standing for at least two years; (2) they must have not received this award within the last two years; and (3) they must be nominated by a current NIRSA student member.

The selection committee, composed of the national student representative as chair, and the six regional student representatives, will choose one professional member from each region.

Criteria to select the professional member includes: should have assisted in student development through various means; served on the student professional development committee; worked on the mentor program; worked with the Student Lead-On program; and, have encouraged students to attend NIRSA events. Winners will be announced at regional business meetings and recognized at the Annual Conference Honor Awards banquet. Send nomination forms by December 31, 2003 to National Student Representative, Jeff Gontarek at his address above.

Student Member Nominations For Office

Nominations for candidates for national student representative and regional student representatives for all six NIRSA regions are due by February 4, 2004. Contact the NNC or NIRSA website (nirsa.org) for the nominating guidelines, then submit these by mail to Committee Chair Tamra Garstka, Arizona State University, Recreational Sports, Box 871412, Tempe, AZ 85287 or email: idtls@asu.edu. For questions, please call Garstka at (480) 965-9879.

National Recreation Facilities Institute

PRESENTED BY NIRSA • OCTOBER 15-18, 2003 • NEWPORT BEACH, CA

Building Your Future

The building boom for recreational sports facilities continues to increase the demand for knowledgeable and qualified facility managers and directors. Since 2000, NIRSA member colleges have spent $7.12 billion for new construction and renovation of indoor and outdoor recreational complexes, centers, and facilities. The National Recreation Facilities Institute provides in-depth information on planning, constructing, renovating, and operating recreational sports facilities. The institute's on-campus tours complement the educational sessions, the interactive opening session, and the networking opportunities with recreational sports managers/directors and architects from across the nation. Check nirsa.org for complete details.

- Access to a network of recreational sports facilities professionals
- Twenty concurrent sessions from the management and design tracks
- A day and a half of recreational facility tours at three different campuses
- Hors d'oeuvres at the networking social; morning refreshments; and two lunches

Tennis – The Sport of Kings ... Literally

Campus recreational tennis enthusiasts may not be aware of it, but they are carrying on the love of a sport that began more than 800 years ago. Tennis originated in France before the 12th century where the first courts were in courtyards immediately adjacent to a castle or in a monastery. At first, the players just used their hands and the game was called Jeu de Paume meaning “Game of the Palm.” Later players used gloves and eventually short bats to hit the ball. The game became very popular and by the 13th century, it is reported that there were as many as 1,800 courts in France.

The sport has had several names... “Real Tennis” in England, “Court Tennis” in the USA, and “Royal Tennis” in Australia. The oldest court in England (Hampton Court Palace built in 1530 by King Henry VIII) had a very different appearance from a modern tennis court. Surrounded by four high walls and covered by a sloping roof, the playing court’s surface was stone. The net drooped in among friends. The United States Tennis Association can assist your campus in getting started and there are stipends available to hire a student to run the program. For more information, call Valerie McCutchan at the NNC or valerie@nirsa.org.

the center to 3-feet, but stood 5-foot high at either end. It was just a simple cord hung with tassels.*

Today, an estimated 16.4 million U.S. players enjoy tennis. USA Team Tennis makes it easy to run tennis programs where the emphasis is on fun and fitness

SPORT CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

NIRSA Collegiate Soccer Sport Club Championship

Plan now to have your men’s and women’s soccer sport club teams attend the 10th annual soccer championships at the University of Alabama (Tuscaloosa), November 20-22, 2003.

There is a change in the number of teams invited to the Men’s Championship Division. This year, that division expands to 24 teams. Each region receives three (3) bids: The defending champion Weber State earns an automatic bid, and five additional teams receive wild card bids. With this new format, 16 teams will advance to the championship bracket, and eight (8) teams will advance to the consolation bracket.

The Women’s Championship Division remains at 16 teams with two (2) bids going to each region: One automatic bid goes to the defending champion (University of Michigan), and three (3) teams receive wild card bids.

Available on a first-come, first-served basis, the Men’s and Women’s Open Divisions will take 16 teams each. When each region formalizes its qualification/invitation process in August, the information will be posted on the NIRSA soccer website at www.nirsa.net/sc/

THE ULTIMATE RECYCLING PROJECT

Q: What do you do with a 14,500 seat indoor Athletic Department arena when a new arena is built to replace it?"

A: Turn it over to the recreational sports department, cover the floor with artificial turf, and make it in to an indoor soccer stadium.

That is just what the University of Maryland (College Park) did with its 47-year-old Cole Field House when its new 17,000-seat, $20 million state-of-the-art basketball arena opened last fall.

"We took over management of the older facility," says Jay Gilchrist, director of Recreational Sports at UMD. "We were able to get the arena, seating, an office suite for our manager, a conference room, and all the men's/women's basketball facilities (locker rooms, lounges, weight rooms, training rooms, etc.). Additionally, we have taken a couple of large spaces - an auxiliary gym and the wrestling room - and are turning them into G.A. office spaces. Some of that space, however, will have to wait until funds are available for redevelopment."

The original arena floor had been sanded so many times it was not worth keeping; the boards were sold to sentimental fans and replaced with a new floor.

"We are also planning to play a smaller version of indoor soccer called Futsal - a game endorsed by the Fédération Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) that doesn't need boards and inset goals, etc. We will also lay out as large of a 'field' as we can, and use it for practice space for our sport clubs such as soccer, lacrosse, field hockey, ultimate, and rugby. We have difficulty during the winter months with the teams going outdoors, plus we have a real shortage of outdoor field space."

Due to environmental safety concerns, the facility's seating capacity has been reduced to 12,500 seats.

"We will be getting the artificial turf installed this summer. However, we will also be using the arena for many campus events - college graduations, career fair, summer programs, opening ceremonies for Special Olympics, concerts, etc. This multiuse goal has driven our selection of the artificial turf surface we are installing," reports Gilchrist.

It is safe to say that historically, Cole Field House has seen it all.

"This arena brings back great memories for me. I received all three of my education degrees - BS through PhD - in graduation ceremonies on that floor," says NIRSA Executive Director, Dr. Kent Blumenthal.

Famous for wild, often face-painted basketball fans, men's games drew crowds of more than 15,000 fans. From 1955-2002, Cole Field House not only witnessed some outstanding games such as the NCAA Final Four games, but the court was used for everything from commencements, wrestling, touring U.S. presidents, the first ping-pong tournament between the US and China in 1972, and Bob Hope performances.

Even Elvis played the Cole in 1974. Thank you... Thank you very much.

Futsal History

Futsal, a derivative of soccer, is played with five-man teams on a basketball style court with no walls and a low bouncing ball instead of playing traditional indoor soccer with six-man squads with walls. Soccer superstars such as Pele, Zico and Ronaldo credit it with developing their skills. The international term FUTSAL was originally referred to as "Minisoccer" and is frequently referred to as "Five-A-Side."

Originating in Uruguay in 1930, it gained rapid popularity throughout South America, particularly in Brazil, which continues to be the hub of the Futsal world. Under the auspices of FIFA (the Fédération Internationale de Football Association), the game is played all over the world - in Europe, North and Central America, the Caribbean, South America, Africa, Asia, and Oceania.

The first international competition took place in 1965, and the first international U.S. match was in 1985 at Sonoma State University in Rohnert Park, Calif. Nearly 1,100 Boys and Girls Clubs of America play the sport, as well as members of the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO). For more information, contact the FIFA in Berkeley, CA at (510) 836-USFF (8733) or by email futsal@futsal.org.

Information with NIRSA Board Shared at Second Annual Neighborhood Summit

This past June, the second annual NIRSA Neighborhood Summit held during the Board of Director's summer Board meeting, provided a perfect opportunity for an expanded exchange of information. Members from nearby campuses met at a park near the NIRSA National Center to share ideas, network, and offer suggestions.

Members reported they appreciated being asked for their input, especially during the small group breakout sessions with a board member. Attendees included: Jennifer DeVries, Brent Harrison, Dennis Munroe and Marisa Hastie (University of Oregon in Eugene); Bruce Mace, (Willamette University in Salem); Richard Sedgwick (Western Oregon University in Monmouth); James Mellein, Thomas Kirch, Benjamin White, Bill Callender, Kristie Deschesne, and Lisa Hoogesteger (Oregon State University in Corvallis); Alex Accetta (Portland State University); NIRSA Past Executive Director Will Holsberry of Corvallis; and the 2003-2004 NIRSA Board of Directors.

Finding a Job at the COC

"Mom! I got the job!" exclaimed an elated young woman into her cell phone near the registration area during the recent NIRSA Annual Conference in Cleveland.

As one of the 328 eager candidates looking for jobs as graduate assistantships or permanent positions in the college and university recreation market, her declaration sums up the overall success of the seamless 2003 Career Opportunities Center operation.

"Overall, candidates seemed very pleased at the ease of searching for a position in the COC," says Mary Martin, NIRSA membership operations coordinator. Held each year in conjunction with the conference, candidates know that this is their best way to find a position in the growing recreational sports field. Sponsored by the NIRSA Foundation, the COC repeatedly remains high on the list of valued events in NIRSA member surveys.

While BluefishJobs.com, NIRSA's online employment data bank, is a hub for employment opportunities in the recreational sports industry throughout the year, as the NIRSA Annual Conference nears, anticipation of both finding a job and filling vacant positions increases exponentially.

This year, using one of 24 computers in the center, some candidates conducted keyword searches on BluefishJobs.com to narrow the list of more than 300 job opportunities through 117 employers, while others targeted the same listings in print. No matter the method used, candidates applied immediately for opportunities that interested them by simply submitting a message to the potential employer's mailbox. The employers then responded and arranged for one-on-one interviews with candidates. Personal interviews and presentations on various opportunities took place onsite over four fast-paced days.

Volunteers in the COC, many previous candidates and employers, extended friendly words of encouragement and provided an organized service to both job seekers and employers.

"The volunteers, who are all members of NIRSA, are the lifeblood of the COC. Without them it doesn't happen!" says Mark Ritter, 2002-2003 Career Opportunities Committee Chair.

"They made the job-seeking and interviewing process as smooth as possible, and an overall success for everyone," adds Martin.

Proposed NIRSA Bylaws Amendments

NIRSA members should submit any proposed bylaws changes no later than August 15, 2003 to Ken Lovic, chair of the bylaws/operating code committee, Georgia State University, Recreational Services, Atlanta, GA 30303; (email: kenlovic@gsu.edu); use the NIRSA Autoresponder system (email: bylaws1@nirsa.org); or contact the NNC. For questions, please phone Lovic at (404) 463-1515. Copies of the current bylaws are on the NIRSA website at nirsa.org.
